

Dear Supporter,

I am writing let you know about The House Dance Project a community based house dance organization that I am producing. The House Dance Project is the most prominent and internationally recognized resources for house dance history, performance, and training. This is a very exciting time for our organization. Now with an international cast of 10 core dancers and off the back of rave reviews from Dixon Place, Alvin Ailey, and St. Mark's Theatre productions, we are gearing up to put dance back in the lives of everyone both domestically and around the world. In NYC, our weekly sessions have been host to over 1600 dancers, and our dancers have are internationally recognized champions of their craft.

For 2011, we will be stepping up on all fronts, with opportunities on the some of the largest stages in the US and increasing our already formidable online and event presence. In addition, we will be developing relationships with the public school systems, and hosting events and forums for both academia and enthusiasts. Support from our extended family will help facilitate our ability to put this cultural element back in the hands of a population that desires the outlet the social dance provides.

We appreciate all of the patronage we have seen over the years. This has changed lives and motivated more that we can name.

The House Dance Project is a sponsored project of Fractured Atlas, a non-profit arts service organization. Contributions in behalf of The House Dance Project may be made payable to Fractured Atlas and are tax deductible to the extent permitted by law.
